pastor's message

The world we live in gives us no shortage of things to worry about. Some of us tend to worry more than others; even though we know how detrimental it can be to our health and well being.

I read a short article entitled, "One Day Only" that might help some of us. One of the secrets of a happy life is to live one day at a time. Do not worry needlessly about the future. Meet tomorrow's problems when they come. Meanwhile enjoy today. To have faith in the future means to have faith in our own self and faith in the eternal resources of God.

Worry accomplishes no real good and only diminishes our resources. The future holds both good and bad for all. In life there is pleasure and suffering, joy and pain, birth and death. These elements are fixed parts of life. They are part of the risk of living; a risk that cannot be avoided. Often, in our worries we concentrate on the evil that may happen to such an extent that we do not see the good that is happening all the while. It is far too heavy a load when we attempt to carry tomorrow's burden along with the burden of today.

The sands of life drop through the hourglass of time just one grain at a time and must be dealt with singly. What a privilege it is to awaken in the morning and look out the window at the light of the new day and say, "This is the day which the Lord has made, let us rejoice and be glad in it." Life has its pain and disappointments, but we must take them as they come, reinforced by our faith.

All praises to God,
